With more festivals than any other state, California can truly lay claim to the title "Land of Food and Wine," as a new marketing campaign claims. Since 2004, the San Diego Bay Wine and Food Festival has made the A-list of California's many festivals. Every November, local and visiting chefs pair their talents with excellent regional wines. The "Reserve & New Release" tasting is an elegant affair that should put this event at the top of every foodie's must-list.
